Korean Premium bronzeware, NOTBAN

Feel the taste of Korean royal food life, and K-culture
as seen in TV dramas

The history of brass in Korea has represented the culture of high-quality dishes together with ceramics since the Bronze Age. In particular, Anseong's Yugi bronzeware has received the highest recognition in the country.

Yugi is an alloy with an optional ratio of 78% copper and 22% tin smelted at high temperatures of 1,200-1,300°C.

Bronzeware goes well with both Korean and Western food

The bronzeware has the characteristic of turning its surface color into purple shortly after contamination by toxic substances or other things harmful to the human body.

Perfectly Crafted for Your Lifestyle NOTBAN carries on the legacy.

Our traditional organic material refers to a brass bowl made of brass by melting the optimal alloy ratio of 78% copper and 22% tin at high temperature of 1200-1300°C.

The history of brass in Korea has represented the culture of high-quality bowls along with oneself as it descends from the Bronze Age, the Three Kingdoms Period, and the Joseon Dynasty. In particular, Anseong's traditional organic materials have received the best reviews in the country, to the extent that the word 'Anseongmachum' has been said since ancient times.

Brass is a material that is an indicator of sterilization and cleanliness as soon as contamination such as carbon monoxide, toxic substances, or harmful foreign substances come into contact with the human body.

Since ancient times, when a person who uses bronzeware has health problems, the color has changed due to a reaction to the surface of the bowl touching the body, and it is said that it was disinfected and eradicated in bronzeware to prevent pests.

Copper, the main ingredient, can fight sterilization, antibacterial, anti-inflammatory and cancer, and helps prevent brain stimulation, aging, and weight loss.
